What is the best cordless handheld vacuum cleaner uk

Handheld vacuums are a great option if you're looking to clean small spills around the home. They're lightweight and portable, and due to their small size, they're handy when tackling more difficult or uneven terrain like inside your car or on your stairs. Some stick or canister vacuums also have a handheld configuration, making them even more versatile if you need to clean larger areas. Unfortunately, handheld vacuums tend to have small dirt compartments. If they're cordless, they may also have a shorter continuous battery life than non-handheld vacuums. We've tested over 115 vacuum cleaners, and below are our recommendations for the best vacuums with a handheld design to buy. These picks are selected based on their performance on different surfaces and their feature set, battery life, and price. For more options, see our lists of the best lightweight vacuums, the best vacuums for stairs, the best car vacuums, the best Dyson vacuums, and the best cordless vacuums. The best handheld vacuum for bare surfaces we've tested is the Hoover ONEPWR Cordless Hand Vacuum. This handheld vacuum does an outstanding job clearing debris on flat, even surfaces like countertops or shelves. It has a relatively large dirt compartment for a handheld vacuum, meaning it doesn't need emptying very often. This vacuum feels decently well-built, though it's worth pointing out that its side-exit exhaust can blow away some lightweight debris. Its primary filter doesn't need replacing too often, so recurring costs aren't very high, and it has a simple overall design that's decently easy to maintain. Its removable battery charges quite quickly, and its roughly 15-minute runtime should give you enough time to spot-clean most areas. Unfortunately, this vacuum's selection of attachments is very limited, as it only comes with a crevice tool to clear debris in tight corners and lacks a turbo brush or a soft-bristle brush for removing dust on delicate surfaces. Still, its fairly compact size and exceptional performance on bare floors help make it one of the best vacuums under $100 that we've tested. See our review The best cordless handheld vacuum for carpets we've tested is the Shark UltraCyclone Pet Pro+. This compact vacuum does an excellent job dealing with fine and large debris on carpets and rugs. It exerts a fairly strong suction force through its inlet, helping it to lift embedded debris from carpet fibers. This vacuum's lightweight construction and compact design make it easy to pick up and carry wherever you may need or store it in a cupboard or closet. It has a fairly large dirt compartment for a handheld vacuum, so it doesn't need emptying as often as some alternatives. It feels well-built and has an easy-to-maintain design that incurs few recurring costs. In terms of attachments, a miniature turbo brush is included, though it isn't very effective in removing pet hair from upholstery. Unfortunately, this vacuum has a very short battery life, as you can only expect roughly 10 minutes of runtime on a single charge. There's no way of adjusting its suction power either, which would help conserve battery life when sucking up very lightweight debris. It also lacks an allergen-trapping HEPA filter and does a terrible job of sealing in fine particles, so it isn't the best option if you suffer from allergies. Still, it's a great option, thanks to its strong performance on various surface types. See our review The best cordless handheld vacuum for dealing with pet hair we've tested is the Shark ION W1 WANDVAC. This compact handheld vacuum can easily handle pet hair on a wide variety of surfaces, including bare, flat surfaces like hardwood or countertops as well as low and high-pile carpets and rugs. It does a decent job dealing with this kind of debris on fabric-lined furniture when used with its upholstery tool. This vacuum's highly compact design allows you to store it in a cupboard or a drawer without too much difficulty, while its lightweight plastic body feels quite sturdy. Unusually for a handheld vacuum at this price point, it also features an onboard HEPA filter, helping it trap fine particles as you clean. User maintenance is very simple, as the few parts that need regular cleaning are readily accessible. However, since this vacuum only has a battery life of a little under 10 minutes, you need to work fast when dealing with bigger messes. It also has a tiny dirt compartment that needs frequent emptying. Unlike alternatives like the Black+Decker dustbuster AdvancedClean+ Pet, it doesn't come with a miniature turbo brush. If you need a compact vacuum for dealing with pet hair, it's still a solid option. See our review Vacuum Type Stick/Handheld Bagless Yes Cordless Yes Anti-Allergy Filter (HEPA) Yes Wet Compatible No If you're looking for a lightweight vacuum that you can use as a stick or handheld appliance, consider the Wyze Cordless Vacuum. This cordless stick vacuum is considerably lighter than most other cordless stick vacuums, making it very easy to pick up and carry. You can also remove its wand and floorhead to clean furniture or hard-to-reach areas. Unusually for a vacuum at this price point, it has an onboard HEPA filter to trap allergens as you clean. This vacuum performs very well on flat, even surfaces, easily clearing pet hair and small debris, though bulky material can clog the entry to its dirt compartment. It also does a great job dealing with messes on low and high-pile carpet. Depending on the surface you're cleaning, you can toggle between its three power modes using the touchscreen display at the back of the vacuum. In its most energy-efficient mode, you can expect just under an hour of runtime on a single charge, though its battery life drops to a little over 10 minutes in its most powerful mode. Unfortunately, some parts of this vacuum's plastic construction feel a little fragile and scratch easily, like its dustbin and the top plate of its floorhead. It has a few parts that need regular cleaning, but thankfully, its bagless design and washable, reusable filter ensure that recurring costs are minimal. Overall, its strong performance and relatively affordable price make it one of the best cordless vacuums we've tested. See our review If you prioritize portability in a handheld vacuum above all else and want something small enough to fit in a cupboard or a drawer, consider the Wyze Handheld Vacuum. It's notably smaller than most of the other handheld vacuums on this list, like the Shark UltraCyclone Pet Pro+, making it even easier to pick it up and carry it to wherever you need it. Using it in its default suction power mode yields roughly half an hour of runtime, which is quite long for a vacuum of this size, though this can drop to as little as 10 minutes if you're using it in its 'Max' power mode. This vacuum does a fantastic job of cleaning pet hair on flat, even surfaces like shelves or countertops, as well as low and high-pile rugs. It can also deal with most solid debris, though it isn't the best for dealing with particularly bulky material, which can get stuck at the entry to its dustbin. It has an allergen-trapping HEPA filter and comes with quite a few attachments, including an extension hose to help you reach far-away places as well as a dedicated upholstery tool. Unlike many other larger handheld vacuums, there's no miniature turbo brush attachment included in the box, which would make it a little easier to spot-clean carpets or rugs. Unsurprisingly given its small size, its dirt compartment is tiny, so you'll need to empty it very frequently. Its portable design, onboard HEPA filter, and affordable price point make it one of the best cheap vacuums we've tested. See our review If you're looking for a handheld vacuum with a HEPA filter that can handle a variety of messes, consider the Dyson Humdinger. This compact cordless vacuum comes with an allergen-trapping HEPA filter, which is washable, so it doesn't need replacing if you clean it according to manufacturer recommendations. The battery life is also quite impressive for a handheld vacuum since you can expect almost half an hour of runtime by using it in its energy-efficient 'Eco' mode. However, this drops to roughly 10 minutes if you use it in its high-power 'MAX' mode. This vacuum has a body and motor similar to the Dyson Micro 1.5kg, though it doesn't come with a wand or a floorhead, so you can only use it as a handheld vacuum, which slightly limits its overall versatility. That said, it's very lightweight, and it comes with a relatively wide assortment of attachments, like a miniature turbo brush and a uniquely designed 'Worktop' tool for cleaning hard surfaces like shelves, tables, and countertops. Unfortunately, like most Dyson vacuums, it feels fragile in places, especially its clear plastic dustbin. This dustbin is also considerably smaller than some other handheld vacuums like the Hoover ONEPWR Cordless Hand Vacuum, so it needs emptying more frequently. Otherwise, if you're looking for a handheld vacuum with a HEPA filter that can tackle all kinds of debris, this is a very good option. See our review BISSELL Featherweight Stick 2033: The BISSELL Featherweight Stick 2033 is a cheap corded upright/handheld vacuum. However, it struggles with clearing large debris. See our review Dyson V11 Animal: The Dyson V11 Animal is a cordless stick/handheld vacuum that performs impressively well on carpeted floors. However, it doesn't clear as much debris as the Shark UltraCyclone Pet Pro+ and is much heavier. See our review Shark Vertex Lightweight Cordless: The Shark Vertex Lightweight Cordless is a stick/handheld model that does a fantastic job cleaning bare floors. The Wyze Cordless Vacuum is more effective on carpets and weighs less. See our review Shark Wandvac System WS620: The Shark Wandvac System WS620 is an upright/handheld vacuum with an excellent performance on low and high-pile carpets. The Wyze Cordless vacuum has a HEPA filter, a longer battery life, and a larger dustbin that doesn't need emptying as frequently. See our review Miele Triflex HX1: The Miele Triflex HX1 is a uniquely designed 3-in-1 cordless handheld/stick/upright vacuum. It represents a great alternative to the Wyze Cordless Vacuum, thanks to its sturdy build quality, exceptional bare floor performance, and automatic surface type adjustment feature. However, it's significantly pricier and weighs more. See our review Dyson V15 Detect: The Dyson V15 Detect is a stick/handheld vacuum with better performance on carpets than the Wyze Cordless Vacuum. However, it's much pricier and weighs quite a bit more. See our review iRobot H1: The iRobot H1 is a handheld vacuum with longer battery life than the Shark UltraCyclone Pet Pro+. It's more demanding in maintenance, has higher recurring costs, and doesn't perform as well on any surface type. See our review Black+Decker dustbuster AdvancedClean+ Pet: The Black+Decker dustbuster AdvancedClean+ Pet is a cordless handheld vacuum that offers superior battery performance to the Shark UltraCyclone Pet Pro+ and has a larger dirt compartment. It feels more cheaply built and doesn't perform as well on any surface type. See our review Shark Rocket Pet Pro with MultiFlex IZ163H: The Shark Rocket Pet Pro with MultiFlex is a cordless stick/handheld vacuum that outperforms the Wyze Cordless Vacuum on bare floors. However, it has a shorter battery life and weighs more. See our review Recent Updates Apr 13, 2022: Article restructuring to align with test bench update.
